DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

Group 1: Figures 2-6, drawn to a mount formed by bending one elongate hollow member.

Group 2, Figure 1, drawn to a mount formed by bending two hollow members and joining two said members.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

2. The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Group 1 corresponds to Claims 3-8.

Group 2 corresponds to Claim 2.

The following claim(s) are generic: Claim 1.

3. The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

Claim 1 is generic to Group 1 and Group 2. Marando (GB 2,320,215) discloses claim 1, a method for producing an elongate hollow member (15) that includes a laterally protruding mounting component (center section containing mounting holes 16) that is formed from the hollow member (15), said method comprising:

at a point about a horizontal axis that intersects a central longitudinal axis of the hollow member at an angle of approximately 45° (the bend at 22 is a point on an axis 45 degrees from the longitudinal axis of hollow member 15) bending the hollow member upwards or downwards at an angle of approximately 90° (sections 12 and 13 are bent at approximately 90 degrees, Fig 5), such that a bent section (12,13) projects laterally in relation to the longitudinal extent of a remainder of the component (Fig 5) and bending a lateral projection portion (13) of the bent section (12,13) such that the lateral projection (13) is angled at an offset height (11 and 13 are offset by the height of 12) in relation to the remainder of the component, forming the mounting component (12 is the mounting component as indicated by the presence of mounting holes 16).

4. In addition to the features of claim 1, Group 1 requires the special technical features of "a partial section of the bent section [being] bent approximately 90 degrees forward", "the bent section is angled into the horizontal plane", and having the "hollow component expanded in an internal high pressure forming tool by means of a high internal fluid pressure", none of which are required by group 2; Group 2 requires the special technical feature of the "two hollow profiles [being] joined to one another at their angled ends", which is not required by group 1. In fact, they are mutually exclusive species. Therefore, a holding that these two species do not relate to a single inventive concept is proper.

5. A telephone call was made to Gary Edwards on December 4, 2008 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.
